Research Data Management is a process of controlling data generated during a research project. Managing data is an integral part of research process as it prevents duplication of effort, enabling others to use your data and it further promotes collaborations. It should also be noted that the funding agencies such as NRF require scholars to properly plan and execute good data practices, and most importantly research data management assist in linking related research, relevant and related data.

COMPETITION RULES
1. The competition closes on 12 April 2019 at 16:00.
2. Library staff are not allowed to enter
3. A winner will win a prize.
4. Winner will be announce on 01 May 2019.